Welcome to Kolkata, City of Joy!

Kolkata also known as Calcutta is the capital of the Indian state of West Bengal. Located on the east bank of the Hooghly River, it is the principal commercial, cultural, and educational centre of East India. The city is widely regarded as the "Cultural Capital" of India, and is also named as the "City of Joy". The suburb population of around 15 million makes Kolkata the third-most populous metropolitan area in India after Mumbai and Delhi. Founded as an East India Company trading post, it was India's capital under the British Raj from 1773-1911.

Today it is known for its grand colonial architecture, art galleries and cultural festivals. Kolkata is known for its literary, artistic, and revolutionary heritage. As the former capital of India, it was the birthplace of modern Indian literary and artistic thought. Kolkata has been called the "City of Furious, Creative Energy". During the 19th and 20th centuries, Bengali literature was modernised through the works of authors such as Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar, Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay, Michael Madhusudan Dutt, Rabindranath Tagore, Kazi Nazrul Islam, and Sarat Chandra Chattopadhyay. Coupled with social reforms led by Ram Mohan Roy, Swami Vivekananda, and others, this constituted a major part of the Bengal Renaissance.

Kolkata was the centre for the Indian independence movement. Following Indian independence in 1947, Kolkata was and remains the centre of modern Indian education, science, culture, and politics.

Notable scholars who were born, worked or studied in Kolkata include physicists Satyendra Nath Bose, Meghnad Saha and Jagadish Chandra Bose; chemist Prafulla Chandra Roy; statisticians Prasanta Chandra Mahalanobis and Anil Kumar Gain; physician Upendranath Brahmachari; educator Ashutosh Mukherjee.

Five Nobel Prize winners have been associated with Kolkata: Sir Ronald Ross (1902, Medicine), Rabindranath Tagore (1913, Literature; first Asian to win the Nobel Prize), C V Raman (1930, Physics), Mother Teresa (1979, Peace), Amartya Sen (1998, Economics).
